Through the clever interweaving between the soft body and the metal frame with the straps, Link uses its own tension lines to make the seat more active in the space, making the seat more humane. In the post-epidemic era, the cold in the office space has gradually faded, and the warm furniture is quickly integrated into it, making the boundary between home and office more blurred. In addition, nowadays, with the advent of Generation Z, the post-90s and post-00s are crowding into the workplace, and they have a more lively and personalized demand for leisure space. Therefore, based on this demand, Link infuses the representative element of fashion clothing -- webbed into it, and integrates it with furniture, breaking through the original limitations and conventional styles of furniture to make it more warm.
